What's the Best Sushi Restaurant in Dallas?
Vote Now to Decide – and Get a $250 Gift Card from the Winning Hotspot

It's hot outside, and we're all looking for something a little cool to take the edge off the heat this summer, so there's no better time to get refreshing and authentic sushi than now (though technically it's never not a great season). Luckily, Dallas has got a handful of delicious spots – but we need your help determining which one is best. Browse from our list of Dallas' top Best and vote for your favorite to let us know which one should roll out on top. Voters will be in the running for a $250 gift card from the winning restaurant.

This poll has never ended. Congratulations to Serious Spoonbar for earning a $250 gift card to the winning restaurant.

VOTE NOW

UCHI
Here, we know Uchi isn't a Dallas-specific restaurant, but we had to include award-winning chef Tyson Cole's place of great sushi and fine dining. The Ahi Dishes restaurant includes hot and cold sashimi, and has a seasonal menu that rotates four times a year. To guarantee quality, creativity and freshness, Uchi has its seafood daily from the Toyama market – in Japan. For an extra delicious experience you can order either the chef's selection of five nigiri or three sashimi.

YUTAKA SUSHI BISTRO
Don't be fooled by its random shopping center location – Yutaka Sushi Bistro is a special place. Named after Tokyo-native Chef Yutaka Yamato, this sushi bistro is a place of simple and delicious bites. The sushi and sashimi specials, flown in straight from Japan's Tsukiji Fish Market, are extra fresh. If you just can't choose what to order (or if you just want something quite freshly eaten special), you can give Chef Yutaka the reins and order a tasting of the recent offerings of his choosing.

VOTE NOW

TEI TEI ROBATA BAR
Tei Tei Robata Bar has no chance in making you stay out of your comfort zone. They admit that some of their food may seem "mild", but take the risk and make the risk a full-blown cultural experience. The James Beard nominated founder Teiichi Sakurai, along with Katsunori Sakurai, passed their own path to make a big sushi splash in Dallas, and were the first to bring "Robata beef on the stick" to Dallas from Japan.

TEI AN
Chef Teiichi Sakurai is back, but this time with Tei An. Though Sakurai focused this specialty and stylish restaurant's menu on freshly made whole steaks, Tei An also serves seasonal sashimi, a number of daily specials, or an Omakase experience. Tei An's design brings a sleek and "modern Tokyo" to Dallas, and encourages diners to sit at the sushi counter that wraps the entire garden. That's right, there's a whole garden.

VOTE NOW

SUSHI SAKE
Sushi Sake is a proud family-owned restaurant situated just outside the metropolis in Richardson. The selection from their menu is extensive, so you're sure to find something for every thing that will suit your taste. And speaking of taste, the beautiful presentation and vibrant colors of the dishes might make you feel a little fancy. They might just seem too pretty to eat, but you should eat them.

SHINSEN
Owners Tracy Rathbone and Lynne Fearing have been dabbling with serious sushi towards for a decade now, and there's no sign of their slowing down. They turned the restaurant together to serve refreshing sushi bites to their neighborhood, and buy have they ever. Just before their menu for a second, and you'll find something guaranteed to be delicious. Their belief in quality and creativity shows through in their list of Shinsen favorites and specials.
